Hi, honey...I'm home...

Well, it finally happened. After working in this business for 20 years, I finally quit a job. I left the series after episode 11 and headed home for Dallas. The show has been picked up and will shoot another 9 episodes, for a total of 22. It was an amicable parting and there are no sour grapes. I simply felt that under the existing, and continuing, conditions, I could no longer provide quality audio for the show. Certain production problems still existed after four months of shooting, and experience indicated I had to make a decision to go or stay. I wish them the best and many more seasons.

If it ain't DAT....well...

Now and then, someone builds a reliable piece of equipment that makes my work easier and produces a better product. I must applaud the folks at HHb for providing such a piece of equipment. The Portadat has become my machine of choice. I used it exclusively on "The Big Easy". No back-ups and NO PROBLEMS! It worked in the rain, heat, humidity of 95%, day and night. The post production team was very pleased with the sound quality and the integrity of the time code.

E-mail city...

Guess what???

Panties are okay,
but cockroaches are where I draw the line.
He wants the snake to get the feel of the room.
We're too stupid to be unhappy.
So much of life is what you do.
Someone give me directions..I'm only an oyster.
Skip Happens!
So, we just pretend we do all that?
The moonlight came on too soon.
You walk leaning!
We sound like three young people acting.
If there's a way...there's boneage.
Don't let the air out of my beignet!

Let's make that phone ring.

What we have here is an unemployed sound mixer. He needs to be put to work to keep him off the street. Think how bad you are gonna feel when you see him at the corner with a sign saying, "Will Mix For Money". He's friendly, works well in groups, and hasn't bitten anyone for months.

Call 214-686-8973 and hire him.
That's 214-686-8973.
Call now, so you won't forget.
